

CFFC Summit 2015

Auckland, 2nd and 3rd July

Once again, The Commission for Financial Capability (CFFC) staged an outstanding two-day Summit. On the second day we were treated to a hugely enlightening presentation from keynote speaker Elaine Kempson, Emeritus Professor, University of Bristol, UK.

Elaine revealed more about her latest work and her thoughts on the most effective ways of helping people build their financial capability. She discussed how billions of dollars have been spent on financial literacy programmes, but are they working? What's the most effective way of helping people change their behaviour? See for yourself—download her presentation here.

bnz Are you a decile 1—4 school?

Remember that BNZ Bank support you by donating 50% of your school's site license fee. Contact us for more details or to register.

Financial Capability for Secondary Students

New research shows that Financial Capability is often seen as just acquiring the knowledge and skills, but it is also about using that knowledge and those skills in real life.

The teaching of financial capability occurs mainly in related subjects, most commonly in economics, accounting, and business studies, but it can have a wider place in schools. Only 18 percent of teachers reported regularly teaching money matters within a curriculum area, although 64 percent reported using teachable moments to include it.

Click here to find out how some teachers have built financial capability into their teaching and learning.

NCEA Lessons for years 12 and 13?

Do you think creating 5 new lessons as an NCEA teaching resource for students in years 12 & 13 would be helpful in your school? Why not help shape the content? Contact alan@bamzonia.co.nz to share your thoughts.

Skills.org.nz work with more than 20 different industries providing trainees and apprentices with the right resources and supporting them with literacy and numeracy.

Obviously, Financial Literacy is a huge life skill that supports a successful career. With that in mind, we are talking to Skills.org to see how we can help Bamzonia fit within their NZQA framework and use the programme as another potential resource.

Welcome!

We welcome over 1,300 students from Whangarei Girls High School who have registered for Bamzonia. Good luck, and enjoy learning this extremely empowering life skill.

Bamzonia for Adults

We are currently in talks with some advisors from the Tauranga Budget Advisory Service to see how we can help them to use Bamzonia as one of their on-going resources.

The New Zealand Federation of Family Budgeting Services (NZFFBS) delivered more than 2,200 community education programmes last year, including 160 schools, 213 work places, and 1,452 other community groups.

